Final Two 2016 “Conversations” with the Montgomery County Commissioners Next Week; Sessions Set For Lansdale and Bryn Mawr

Norristown, PA (May 18, 2016) – The Montgomery County Commissioners will hold their final two “Conversations with Commissioners” town hall meetings for 2016 next week.

On Monday, May 23, 2016 the commissioners will be at Lansdale Borough Hall, One Vine Street, Lansdale, PA 19446 at 7:00pm for a wide ranging conversation on county issues. On Tuesday, May 24, 2016 at 7:00pm, the commissioners will travel to Ludington Library, 5 South Bryn Mawr Avenue, Bryn Mawr, PA 19010.

These are the final two town hall meetings in the series of six. Previously, the commissioners held sessions in Pottstown, Norristown, Pennsburg, and Glenside.

The series of town hall meetings give residents of the county the opportunity to discuss any county-related issues with the commissioners.

“This is the third year we have held ‘Conversations with the Commissioners’ and these events have proved to us how large and diverse our wonderful county is,” said Josh Shapiro, chair of the commissioners. “While residents throughout the county want their county government to be responsive and efficient, there was a wide range of issues raised depending on the part of the county we were visiting, and gave the commissioners a real sense of what issues were on people’s minds.”
