Montco Sheriff's and Domestic Relations Offices run end-of-year deadbeat parent sweep
One defendant who owes over $100K is still at large

Norristown, Pa. (December 4, 2014) – Montgomery County Sheriff's Office deputies knocked on doors in Norristown and Pottstown at 1:00 a.m. on December 4, 2014 looking for 31 deadbeat parents who owed $512,848 in child support arrearages for 42 children.

Eight dads from the list along with an additional four men, who were picked up and arrested, represented $151,782 in back child support payments for 15 kids. Some had failed to show up for scheduled hearings where their cases could have been resolved, said Court of Common Pleas Judge Rhonda Daniele, Judge.

"I'm proud of our office's work with the Domestic Relations Office in helping to find these deadbeat parents," said Sheriff Russell Bono. "I look forward to continuing our efforts in the New Year."

Since March 2014, 280 defendants representing over $3.5 million have been arrested or turned themselves in to the Montgomery County Sheriff's Office Warrants Division or the Domestic Relations Office.

Floyd Strong, who owes $103,034 for one child, is still at large.
